palgrave▶pivot

Publishing across the Humanities, the Social Sciences and Business, palgrave▶pivot introduces an innovative new format for scholarly research. Designed to liberate scholarship from the straitjacket of traditional formats and business models, palgrave▶pivot allows us to deliver quality new research rapidly, and at its natural length.

BENEFITS TO AUTHORS:

- ▶ Flexibility: palgrave▶pivot offers the opportunity to publish at lengths between the journal article and the conventional monograph (typically 25 – 50,000 words)
- ▶ Speed: publication of accepted manuscripts within 12 weeks, using the latest fast-track production techniques.
- ▶ Peer-review: palgrave▶pivot publications are subject to a professional and rigorous peer-review process
- ▶ Wide dissemination: publications are available as digital collections for libraries, including via Palgrave Connect, individual ebooks for personal use, and as digitally-produced print editions

‘This is a bold innovation. Whereas publishing these days is too often belatedly reactive rather than proactive, Palgrave Macmillan has created an exciting new form to occupy the middle ground between a journal article and a monograph that will have significant impact on future work in the Humanities and Social Sciences’

- Eric Rasmussen, Chair of the Department of English, University of Nevada, USA

‘I’m fascinated by the palgrave▶pivot project and shall spread the word. That strikes me as an excellent way to publish innovative works as quickly as possible, not so much as full books but as ‘think pieces’.

- Akira Iriye, Emeritus, Harvard University, USA

‘Of all the presses I’ve looked into, none compared to the excitement I had when I discovered palgrave▶pivot. I think it’s an amazing idea’

- Kelly A. Forrest, Assistant Professor, Interdisciplinary Arts & Sciences, University of Washington, Tacoma, USA

'palgrave▶pivot meets a need for timely research in the digital world. The humanities and social sciences have been left behind in the immediacy of published research and palgrave▶pivot should be a great innovation to meet the needs of 21st century students and researchers in these fields. As we know, 'speed' and 'innovation' are key in the current world of scholarly research'

-Jane Fitzpatrick, Acquisitions Librarian,
CUNY Graduate Center, USA

ENDORSEMENTS

'This is an exciting new development which provides a welcome alternative to the conventional journal article or monograph conundrum. The ▶pivot seems like an ideal format for scholars seeking to disseminate their research while it is still fresh and current'

- Neil Chakraborti, Senior Lecturer in Criminology, University of Leicester, UK

'palgrave▶pivot is an exciting and timely innovation on Palgrave's part; at a time when academic publishing feels more restrictive than ever, as regards the possible formats and outlets for scholarly work, and with the deluge of online disinformation overload, Pivot offers a significant opportunity to foster and cultivate a more vibrant and current intellectual commons'

- Eileen A. Joy, Southern Illinois University Edwardsville, USA

'It is great to hear that palgrave▶pivot will be publishing a short form of monograph books. The typical scholarly article can be too short to get a comprehensive understanding of the research, and books tend not to be the right format for all specific and idiosyncratic pieces of research. This new format is innovative'

- Professor Cary L. Cooper, CBE, Distinguished Professor of Organizational Psychology and Health, Lancaster University Management School, UK, and Chair of the Academy of Social Sciences, UK

'palgrave▶pivot is a most welcome and original development. From Carlyle and Macaulay through to some of the great intellectuals and scholars of the modern era such as Robert Darnton and Joan Scott, the long essay has been one of the most accessible and stimulating ways to present new work, to speculate, to argue and to intervene. Perhaps more paradigms have shifted and conventions been shaken by this format than any other. An imprint which promises to be short, sharp and speedy is very good news for author and reader alike'

- Professor Miles Taylor, Director of the Institute of Historical Research, University of London, UK
